ChefKevs Catering Showcases Scottish Wild Venison at Glenfalloch Estate with Highland Game & Brakes Scotland

Dunoon, Scotland – 28th August 2025

Private Chef Kevin Lawrence of ChefKevs Catering was invited to showcase his culinary expertise at Glenfalloch Estate as part of a Highland Game and Brakes Scotland immersive chef training experience. The prestigious event brought together corporate development chefs and customer chefs from across Scotland's hospitality and catering sector, with a focus on promoting Scottish provenance and premium wild venison.

Working alongside Highland Game's expert butchers and estate gamekeepers, Kevin delivered a live menu sampling and cooking demonstration designed to highlight the estate-to-plate ethos. His dishes emphasised the freshness, versatility, and exceptional flavour of Scottish wild venison, while also underlining its nutritional and sustainable qualities.

The day included:

- A guided quarry and larder visit with insight into Red and Roe deer species.
- On-site butchery demonstrations led by Highland Game.
- Live cooking demonstration by Chef Kevin Lawrence, showcasing venison cuts with creativity and finesse.
- Tastings that reinforced the importance of local sourcing, provenance, and freshness.
- Discussions on how venison can play a greater role in public and private sector menus, supporting sustainability and Scotland's reputation as a food nation.

"This event was about more than just cooking — it was about telling the full story of Scottish wild venison, from the hills to the plate. I wanted to show chefs how versatile and accessible venison is, and how it can be a real asset to their menus while supporting sustainability," said Kevin Lawrence.

The event aimed to inspire chefs from hotels, pub groups, universities, and catering services to introduce more Scottish venison dishes into their menus, helping to drive consumer demand and ensure that this high-quality, sustainable protein continues to grow in popularity.
